

A BRIEF HISTORY

The present Dartington Morris Men side was formed in 1968. In the early days the side practised in the 13th Century "Pillar Studio" at Dartington Hall near Totnes, Devon. Whilst practising and contemplating a name for the side, Leonard Elmhirst, a founder of the Dartington Hall Trust, informed the men that he had once danced the Morris. He suggested that the side call themselves The Dartington Morris Men and use the Dartington crest of a white hart on a red rose, the crest of Richard II and John Holland (who was given the manor of Dartington for services rendered in battle.)

Two previous Dartington Morris sides are known to have danced in the Totnes area; one at the end of the 19th century, the other in the 1930s. One of these sides apparently danced in bare feet.

The side consists of male dancers, male and female musicians, our horse "Champerowne", a pair of Fools. We perform Cotswold dances from a number of traditions and we are unique in performing dances from the Filkins tradition.

THE FILKINS DANCES

We are proud performers of dances from the lost "Filkins" tradition, reconstructed from scant evidence by Christopher Farr, a respected and well-known member of our side. Filkins is a village in Oxfordshire; it is believed that Morris was danced there in the 19th century (more fully described on our website). There are currently five dances and a jig, which we alone perform.

MORRIS DANCES

The English Morris is performed traditionally by men and women and may have its origin in pagan fertility rites, although the present form of dance is more recent. The name "Morris" may be derived from "Moorish", in reference to a dance style based on the Spanish "Moros y Cristianos" ("Moors and Christians"). This may have been first introduced to England through the household of John of Gaunt and Constance of Castile, following John of Gaunt's active involvement in the politics of Northern Spain during the Hundred Years War. Related dancing spread to other European countries too, but it was in England that the dance form thrived. For more detailed history and fascinating stories, please visit our website.

THE MORRIS RING www.themorrisring.org

The Morris Ring is the national association of Morris clubs with male dancers and is concerned with maintaining the traditions and performance of the Morris in its various forms, including Mummer's plays. Dartington MM was admitted to membership of the Morris Ring in 1978.
